

Dr. Cicily Hampton

Dr. Cicily Hampton, PhD, MPA is a health care operations executive, public health advocate, and health disparities/social determinants of health (SDOH) researcher who designs health care systems for government payors in addition to leading legislative and regulatory advocacy activities that address public health, health disparities, and prevention to advance quality, affordable healthcare for all. Dr. Hampton began her career advocating on behalf of patients enrolled in federal health programs as well as development and execution of advocacy strategies around delivery system and payment reform, quality metrics, and health disparities in what later became the Affordable Care Act. She has more than 10 years of experience in health policy and advocacy on behalf of nonprofit organizations to advance progressive causes. Dr. Hampton has taught more than 1,000 people to become advocates for state, local, and federal public health policies. Dr. Hampton has published in a variety of peer-reviewed, academic journals in addition to books and book chapters in edited works and is a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health Equity Scholar. Dr. Hampton holds a BA in Political Science from Seton Hall University, an MPA from American University, and a PhD in Public Policy from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.
